

Contents

Anna Brzezińska, Andrzej Czyżewski, Tomasz Siewierski, A Word from the Editors. . . . 7

ARTICLES

Andrzej Czyżewski, Lucjan Dobroszycki (1925–1995) – a Forgotten Historian (Not Only) of the Holocaust	11
Artur Mękowski, Between the Piast Poland, Jagiellonian Poland, and The Commonwealth of Both Nations. ‘Anarchological’ Reflections and Their Place in the Development of Paweł Jasienica’s Historical Thought	43
Jakub Muchowski, Politics of Historical Writing and the Politics of Literature – Hayden White and Jacques Rancière Read Erich Auerbach	69
Michał Przeperski, Historiography of the Polish Transformation? A Draft to a Summary	89
Tomasz Siewierski, A Page from the Historiography of the Workers’ Movement: the Case of Jerzy Targalski (1929–1977)	105
Ewa Solska, Epistemological Aspects of the Discourse on University	125
Adrianna Szczerba, On the Involvement of the Department for Studies on the Origins of the Polish State (1949–1953) in Rescue Excavation Research in Nowa Huta	149
Marcin Wolniewicz, How Did a Historian Make Ends Meet during the War? The Case of Stefan Kieniewicz (1939–1945)	157